

OUR FIVE UNDER $25

2005.12.13 - ISSUE 30

You have your list and you're checking it twice. We know. And that list keeps spiraling.

Especially now that you have that new gift category called the "no less important but much tougher to buy for people".

We mean the school teacher, the dance instructor, the babysitter, not to mention Great Aunt Mildred, your secret Santa at the office, and your girlfriend who has everything already.

We combed the stores and websites to find you five great gift picks (all priced under $25) to help save you time and money and get you finished with that list.

(Even better, we made sure all our picks can be purchased online or over the phone and be delivered.)

Yup, time and money - keep reading.

1. For the Family – Mannerisms Game

Give the gift that teaches them how to be on their "best behaviour" with this fun-for-the-whole-family dinner game created by two Toronto mom-preneurs. (Parents might learn some manners too!)

Available online at Mannerisms

2. For the New Parents – Safe Baby Handling Kit

Give the gift that makes them laugh. The makers of the Parenting Wheel of Responsibility, Wry Baby, have come up with possibly the funniest parenting book ever. It will be sure to make those overwhelmed new parents chuckle with its hilarious "do's and don'ts" on baby care (and - bonus - it also comes with stickers and a mini Wheel of Responsibility).
